April 3, 2015 | South Bend

Damon Leichy of the South Bend office was mentioned in several articles published by ABC News, the South Bend Tribune, WSBT 22 and the Chicago Tribune. Damon, of the South Bend office, represented the University of Notre Dame in a case of first impression for Indiana courts: whether a private university's campus police department is subject to Indiana's Access to Public Records Act (APRA). ESPN has filed a suit claiming that the Notre Dame Security Police Department is a "public agency" under APRA and required to produce records on hundreds of student-athletes. The articles highlight oral argument on the university's motion to dismiss the case.
