Pearl Pathway

Even at the earliest stages, bioscience companies need to have a good plan and understanding of key milestones if they hope to grow. Starting off well can save both valuable time and resources.

Please join us as our panelists delve into the basics of pre-clinical business plans, determining the best regulatory pathway, performing toxicology studies and generating other key analytical data, and discussing how to best protect your intellectual property. The choices made at this stage can affect your business for years to come, so make sure you're prepared!
