

Mike McCrory's practice included business, commercial, bankruptcy and creditors' rights matters. He advised on complex workouts and loan restructurings, the representation of secured and unsecured creditors and creditors' committees in bankruptcy cases, commercial and bankruptcy mediation, real estate foreclosures, repossessions, and general collections, as well as Uniform Commercial Code issues.

Mike is certified by the American Board of Certification as a Business Bankruptcy Specialist. In addition, he successfully completed the American Bankruptcy Institute/St. John's University School of Law Bankruptcy Mediation Training Course and is a registered civil mediator in Indiana.

Mike offered industry experience in the automotive and aerospace sectors. He regularly worked with manufacturers and automotive suppliers to address a broad range of matters, including contract negotiation and enforcement, collections and bankruptcy issues. He also has deep experience in the area of higher education, and advised clients on multiple issues relating to student loan dischargeability and student loan documentation, compliance, accreditation and re-accreditation matters.

Valued for meeting and transcending client expectations, deadlines and budgetary requirements over decades of practice, Mike's commitment to solving his clients' problems was supported by his ability to strategize on matters large and small. His broad experience in bankruptcy law and practice allowed him to navigate even the most difficult terrain and changing economic conditions. On many occasions, clients turned to Mike to explore their options regarding potential reorganizations and restructurings, financings, supply chain challenges and other similar initiatives.

Mike thrived under the fast-paced, pressurized demands of the insolvency practice. Notably, Mike recently worked with a major OEM on a critical matter involving just-in-time delivery and sole source supplier issues, where he ably guided the client through time sensitive supplier challenges.

Exceedingly professional, Mike was appreciated for his ability to deal with
