

Rob Folland focuses his practice on complex commercial, insolvency and financial disputes in federal district, bankruptcy and state courts. He regularly defends financial institutions, public corporations and private companies in high stakes litigation involving financial management, fiduciary duties and recapture of transfers. Rob has a sizeable plaintiff's practice focused on recovering assets for insurance liquidators and other large creditors.

With an active insolvency practice, Rob also assists asset assignees, creditor committees, debtors, examiners, monitors, trustees and receivers. He has represented national mortgage servicers and other public companies in class actions and qui tam litigation. Rob has also defended numerous clients with respect to federal and state mortgage, confidentiality and consumer protection statutes. Rob's practice is focused in Ohio and Florida but he also appears regularly in courts located in Kentucky, Michigan and Pennsylvania.

Appreciated by clients and colleagues alike for his perseverance, even in the face of serious financial consequences and difficulty, Rob strives to remain available to those he serves and to provide advice that is practical for their business and strategic objectives.
