2023 was filled with labor and employment law changes that upended the workplace.

From federal agency attacks on non-compete agreements to changes to what severance agreements can say to a host of standard personnel policies likely becoming unlawful, there was a lot to track. 2024 looks to be equally dizzying.

Good news: At this seminar, Barnes & Thornburg's Labor and Employment attorneys will cover the critical developments from 2023 you need to know and also preview major issues on the horizon in the New Year. With 2024 being a leap year, that's one more day for federal agencies and/or Congress to make changes affecting how you manage your workers. See you there!
