

Christine represents commercial lenders and borrowers in connection with syndicated lending, secured transactions, real estate lending, asset-based financings and leveraged buyout and acquisition financings, including drafting loan documentation, performing due diligence, reviewing titles and surveys, and creating and perfecting security interests.

Christine also focuses her work on general corporate counseling, complex business and commercial transactions, and finance. She counsels and represents companies in transactions related to corporate finance transactions, business entity formation, M&A, contract negotiations, asset sales, dissolution, and governance issues.

Before turning to private practice, Christine spent a number of years as vice president in the printing industry where she negotiated and secured single source contracts with companies, government agencies and municipalities.
