Temple University and Temple Health hosted a luncheon symposium to celebrate the recent opening of the Innovation Nest, an incubation space to assist startup companies with ties to the two entities. Temple's ENRICH program – which is focused on partnering with European-based startups – is using the Innovation Nest, creating a place where those entrepreneurial efforts can nest and take flight. As part of the symposium and in alignment with ENRICH, Rory Pheiffer and Timo Rehbock presented on IP and corporate issues startup companies coming from Europe should be mindful of as they establish themselves in the United States. Molly Flynn and Chloe Margulis attended.
