Washington, D.C.

At Barnes & Thornburg our Washington attorneys and policy analysts strive to provide innovative solutions that are responsive to our client's concerns, using established networks and creative thinking to resolve complex issues. We understand how the federal government impacts the businesses, trade associations, municipalities, local and state governmental agencies, Native American tribes and individuals that we represent. We craft strategies based on our knowledge, experience and ability to influence the Federal Government's decision-making processes. Should litigation become necessary, our litigators have proven their capabilities in courts leading to and including the U.S. Supreme Court.

You will find that our Washington legal professionals are hardworking, welcoming and energetic – mirroring the energy and heart of the District of Columbia. They offer experience assisting clients with a wide range of business needs, including intellectual property, campaign finance laws and regulations, international trade and import/export regulatory matters, environmental regulations and related litigation, labor and employment, compliance, nonprofit, energy and utilities, transportation and logistics, food and drug regulations, medical device and biotech, and white collar criminal defense and investigations.

We take pride in our long-standing commitment to the D.C. metro area and our legal professionals support the communities in which they live and work through numerous philanthropic efforts.
